C Worlds - October 3rd & 4th

This is it. The final weekend of the 2009 season. The Delavan Lake Yacht Club hosts the C World Championship this Saturday and Sunday.

The "Worlds" title has always been a fun name for this extraordinarily fun event - but this year it means more. The World Championship - i.e. the 2009 National Rankings title - is on the line! Current leaders Tim & Bre Krech M20 (winners of the Inland Championship and the Invitational) face off against Augie Barkow & Jeff Nedziella V11 (winners of the National Championship and the Blue Chip). The Krech's have what appears to be an insurmountable lead, but if you scan down the current standings, you'll see V11 lying in the weeds in 48th place. Team Barkow has only raced in two regattas so far and have 1,000 point place holder for their third event. A top finish in Delavan could challenge M20's claim to the title. So if you see M20 / V11 in a tacking duel on the first beat of the first race you'll know why.

The DLYC goes all out for the C fleet every year. If you've been to the Worlds before you know about the World Famous Fish Boil, and of course the Flip Cup tournament, but there is also great racing. If you haven't made it Delavan, you're missing out. This club, the lake, and the regatta are a great c-boating experience.

If you have any questions contact Josh Funderburg. There are registration forms and sailing instructions online.
